

fame camp goals

- to provide a positive theater experience for students entering grades 7 through 9 in the Fall of 2017.
- to expose students to all areas of theater: to act, to sing, to dance, to work on technical aspects of theater.
- to increase student self-confidence and independence through workshop opportunities.
- to develop knowledge about theater production, both in front of the curtain and behind the scenes.
- to be inspired by adults and other students who love the theater.
- to have fun!

fame camp fees

$325* for a two-week session, over 50 hours of instruction.

Space is first come, first served.

* Payment plans and scholarships are available so any student interested may attend.

The fee covers 10 days of instruction, materials, camp t-shirt, snacks, costumes, music and other support items. The final performances are free to family and friends of the Fame campers.

why hanford high fame camp?

Hanford High School Drama, under the direction of Matt Leggett since 1990, has built a reputation for quality theater instruction and production. The students participate in classroom instruction, in regional and state competitions and in full-scale performances. Staging a range of performances – from Shakespeare’s comedies and tragedies to musicals like Seussical – the program thrives on excellent leadership, student talent and parent and community involvement.

Each year, students earn double superior ratings at the regional and state drama competitions, as well as individual and group awards at the 5th Avenue Awards, the Washington state high school equivalent of the Tony Awards. In 2013, Drowsy Chaperone also won best musical at the 5th Avenue Awards, and six years ago, How to Succeed in Business won the same honor.

Many of our alumni go on to pursue theater or music degrees and careers in the performing arts.
